Situation Analysis

There is general agreement between the Government of Yemen and its development partners that a key underlying cause of sub-optimal development outcomes is governance failures, which have resulted in corruption and mismanagement of public resources at all levels of government. The PRSP and MDG Needs Assessment reports both highlight the importance of progress in governance.

According to Transparency International's corruption perception index, Yemen ranks 131 out of 180 countries, and 10th out of 14 Middle Eastern countries measured. The Government of Yemen recognizes the detrimental effects of corruption on development, and has consequently established a Supreme National Authority to Combat Corruption (SNACC). Moreover, the Parliament's Constitutional Committee has been studying a draft access to information law since September 2007.

While the larger donor community (World Bank, GTZ, USAID, DFID) in Yemen is supporting the institutional capacity building of the Supreme National Authority to Combat Corruption (SNACC), the potential role of civil society in tackling corruption has received less attention. The World Bank plans to initiate investigation training courses for different government entities including SNACC, the Central Organization for Control and Audit (COCA) and the Police Academy. USAID on the other hand will organize for SNACC members training and study tours to Malaysia and Indonesia.

Project Strategy

In order to further increase the momentum of the anti-corruption drive within Yemen, this project will support the role of civil society¹ in advocating for greater transparency in policy processes. The project will contribute to achieving UNDP's Country Programme Output on Enhanced national capacities to demand and deliver transparency and accountability of public officials. The project has two interrelated components which are in line with UNDP's Practice Note on Access to Information (October 2003):

- 1 - Capacity strengthening, networking, and elevation of standards of journalists at the national level to promote the exchange of independent and pluralist information on corruption issues.
- 2- Training in public resources monitoring techniques and awareness raising among NGOs in five governorates on the concept of access to information to enable them to devise access to information advocacy strategies at the governorate level.

Two target groups have been identified as having the potential to influence public opinion and provide input to the transparency agenda in Yemen. The first target group is journalists, who by receiving training in anti-corruption investigative skills will enable the media to perform its watchdog role in a more professional and effective manner. The project will focus on journalists from the print media, as it is a media form that is relatively independent in Yemen. It is well understood, that given the high illiteracy rate in the country, the official audiovisual media sector needs to play a role in transparency advocacy as well. Therefore, the project will in consultation with SNACC, work with TV and radio producers to develop and broadcast a series of innovative public awareness messages on public television and local radio stations.

The second target group is non-governmental organizations. Raising awareness on the concept of access to information and building capacity in public resources monitoring techniques will empower these organizations to participate effectively in policy making processes such as governorate level development plans. The project will target five non-governmental organizations in five governorates. The selection of the targeted governorates will be conducted in consultation with UNDP's Decentralized Local Development Support Programme (DLDSP) in order to find synergies with the DLDSP's community mobilization efforts. The project will also seek synergies with UNDP's Public Finance Management Project which focuses among other things on the availability of public information.

In order to increase the number of elected officials willing to engage with the broader public, elected governorate officials will be trained on their public roles and how to effectively engage with their constituents by briefing the constituents on development plans and answering questions posed by the media. The project will facilitate public forums in five governorates, featuring government officials and civil society discussing topics related to the distribution and use of public resources, access to information and transparency issues important to the specific governorate. The forum may also focus on a particular development issue chosen by the participants; such as health facilities, water, education etc.

Yemen being a state party to the United Nations Convention against Corruption (UNCAC), this project will support Yemen in adhering to Article 13 (Participation of Society) of the Convention, which states:

Each State Party shall take appropriate measures, within its means and in accordance with fundamental principles of its domestic law, to promote the active participation of individuals and groups outside the public sector, such as civil society, non-governmental organizations and community based organizations, in the prevention of and the fight against corruption and to raise public awareness regarding the existence, causes and gravity of and the threat posed by corruption. This participation should be strengthened by such measures as:

- (a) Enhancing the transparency of and promoting the contribution of the public to decision-making processes;*
- (b) Ensuring that the public has effective access to information;*
- (c) Undertaking public information activities that contribute to non-tolerance of corruption, as well as public education programmes, including school and university curricula;*
- (d) Respecting, promoting and protecting the freedom to seek, receive, publish and disseminate information concerning corruption. That freedom may be subject to certain restrictions, but these shall only be such as are provided for by law and are necessary:*
 - (i) For respect of the rights or reputations of others;*
 - (ii) For the protection of national security or ordre public or of public health or morals.*

Partnership Strategy

This project is demand driven and has been formulated in consultation with SNACC, and with the Yemeni Women Media Forum (NGO). UNDP will establish with SNACC a Consultative Committee on the role of CSOs in transparency advocacy. The Committee's role will be to ensure that the project does not duplicate other activities, as well as coordinate with government bodies to facilitate the work of CSOs involved in the project.

As part of the needs assessment, the project will partner with a research institute to conduct a baseline study on quality dimensions of reporting on corruption in print, web, and audiovisual media. The project will also facilitate a half day stakeholder meeting with the Consultative Committee to ensure that SNACC, journalist trainees and the five selected CSOs can provide input on key issues that the training needs to include.

For the first component of the project, UNDP envisages to partner with an international NGO to build the capacity of the Yemeni Women Media Forum (YWMF) to strengthen their leadership in sustaining the network of newly trained investigative journalists, increasing the momentum generated by the project.

For the second component of the project, UNDP envisages to partner with a local or international NGO to work with the CSOs on access to information at the local level.

Within the framework of this project UNDP will also seek to bolster South-South Cooperation by exploring the possibility of organizing a field trip to Yemen for a representative of Mazdoor Kisan Shakti Sangathan (MKSS). MKSS is a pioneering grassroots social movement in rural India that brought about the Right to Information Act. Bringing MKSS representatives to Yemen will enable local NGOs to learn from the Indian experience in advocating for access to information.

II. MANAGEMENT ARRANGEMENTS

The project organisation structure will be the following:

A Project Board will be established to oversee the implementation of the project. The Project Board will be chaired by the Supreme National Authority to Combat Corruption (SNACC) and representatives will include UNDP and selected NGOs. The Project Board should meet at least once every four months.

Given that the project addresses transparency issues, the Supreme National Authority to Combat Corruption (SNACC) will act as the Executive of the Project Board. The Executive represents the national ownership of the project. The Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation (MOPIC) will act as co-Chair of the Project Board. UNDP's Governance Team Leader will act as a Senior Supplier. The Senior Supplier is the individual or group representing the interests of the parties concerned which provide funding and/or technical expertise to the project. The Senior Supplier's primary function within the Project Board is to provide guidance regarding the technical feasibility of the project. The Women Media Forum and NGOs will act as Senior Beneficiary. The Senior Beneficiary is an individual or group of individuals representing the interests of those who will ultimately benefit from the project. The Senior Beneficiary's primary function within the board is to ensure the realization of project results from the perspective of journalists and NGOs.

The project will be implemented by UNDP (Direct Implementation). UNDP will be in charge of recruitment and procurement activities and ensure that activities are delivered according to agreed upon plans and in accordance with UNDP rules and regulations. Cost sharing funds will be channelled through the UNDP bank account and funds will be managed by UNDP.

A UNDP Programme Officer will act as Project Assurance. The Project Assurance role supports the Project Board by carrying out objective and independent project oversight and monitoring functions. This role ensures appropriate project management milestones are managed and completed. Project Assurance has to be independent of the Project Manager; therefore the Project Board cannot delegate any of its assurance responsibilities to the Project Manager.

A National Project Director will be recruited to act as a Project Manager. The Project Manager will have the authority to run the project on a day to day basis on behalf of UNDP. The Project Manager is appointed by UNDP and his prime responsibility is to ensure that the project produces the results (outputs) specified in the project document, to the required standard of quality and within the specified constraints of time and cost.

Technical Project Support to the Project Manager will be provided by international and local consultants.

III. MONITORING FRAMEWORK AND EVALUATION

Suggested text to be adapted to project context

In accordance with the programming policies and procedures outlined in the UNDP User Guide, the project will be monitored through the following:

Within the annual cycle

- On a quarterly basis, a quality assessment shall record progress towards the completion of key results, based on quality criteria and methods captured in the Quality Management table below.
- An Issue Log shall be activated in Atlas and updated by the Project Manager to facilitate tracking and resolution of potential problems or requests for change.
- Based on the initial risk analysis submitted (see annex 1), a risk log shall be activated in Atlas and regularly updated by reviewing the external environment that may affect the project implementation.
- Based on the above information recorded in Atlas, a Quarterly Progress Reports (QPR) shall be submitted by the Project Manager to the Project Board through Project Assurance, using the standard report format available in the Executive Snapshot.
- a project Lesson-learned log shall be activated and regularly updated to ensure on-going learning and adaptation within the organization, and to facilitate the preparation of the Lessons-learned Report at the end of the project
- a Monitoring Schedule Plan shall be activated in Atlas and updated to track key management actions/events

Annually

- Annual Review Report. An Annual Review Report shall be prepared by the Project Manager and shared with the Project Board and the Outcome Board. As minimum requirement, the Annual Review Report shall consist of the Atlas standard format for the QPR covering the whole year with updated information for each above element of the QPR as well as a summary of results achieved against pre-defined annual targets at the output level.
- Annual Project Review. Based on the above report, an annual project review shall be conducted during the fourth quarter of the year or soon after, to assess the performance of the project and appraise the Annual Work Plan (AWP) for the following year. In the last year, this review will be a final assessment. This review is driven by the Project Board and may involve other stakeholders as required. It shall focus on the extent to which progress is being made towards outputs, and that these remain aligned to appropriate outcomes.
